

Göran Hermerén

Professor of Medical ethics, Lund University, Sweden since 1991, professor of philosophy, Lund University since 1975. Previously visiting fellow at Princeton University, University of Michigan and Trinity College, Dublin. Has published books and papers on aesthetical and ethical problems in international periodicals. Partner in several research projects funded by the EU. Member of the National Council on Medical Ethics in Sweden since its start. Chairman of the ethics committee of the Swedish Research Council (Stockholm), chairman of the advisory board of the German reference centre for ethics in the life sciences DRZE (Bonn) and President of the European Group on Ethics in Science and New Technologies (Brussels) since 2002. Research interests: research ethics, ethical problems raised by emerging technologies, and priority setting in health care.

